Budget Board hears two proposals

By PHILIP E.L. GREENE
Staff Writer

Fifty percent of the Budget Board was present for this week's meeting at which three mid-year reviews and two proposals were heard.

Present were board chairer Warren I. Grody, member Roger Billman, and alternate Griff Giess, leaving members David Abidi, Twyla Dunn and Michael Netzley absent.

The first order of business was the review of the ombudsman's office, represented by ombudsman William Diedrick. Diedrick said, of the allocated budget of $3,028, there was $2,223 remaining for the rest of the year.

He also pointed out to the board that the office had handled more than thirty cases since fall quarter as compared to forty-five for the whole of last year.

"I think there's a heck of a lot of problems out there if people would just come to us for help," he said.

Kim Home presented the review for SAFE, along with notifying the board that the escort service would probably be "put on hold" at least through winter quarter. SAFE is experiencing problems in recruiting escorts, according to Home.

The final review before the board was the Leadership Laboratory, represented by Melanie Mendell.

During the review, Mendell gave figures on last Saturday's leadership lab on campus and the off-campus lab held last quarter.

In proposals brought before the board, Doug Perry of Delta Tau Ki voiced concern for the fraternity's request of $225 for its winter dance party. However, according to budget board guidelines, fraternities must have a faculty advisor to request funds. Perry was advised to return after the frat had obtained one.

"Right now, we don't have any problem with giving you the grant, providing you get a faculty advisor," said Grody.

The Pan-Hellenic Council and the Inter-Fraternity Council, represented by Laurell Blewett and Bill Smith, respectively presented the board with a request for $346.50 to purchase food for the reception after the All-Greek Formal Awards Banquet, which is sponsored by Student Development. The board approved the sum of $346.00.

Computer Learning Center honored

MOBEEN SHIRAZI
Special Writer

In early December of 1986, the Microcomputer Learning Center at Wright State University's College of Continuing and Community Education received the 1986 Award of Excellence from Software Alternatives Incorporated.

SAI, an organization designed to meet the needs of universities across portions of the eastern United States, specializes in the fields of computer software and other related materials. Each year, SAI chooses a university to receive this award.

Several factors are taken into consideration by SAI in selecting the recipient of the award. One is the quality and quantity of the computer hardware utilized. The Wright State center possesses a total of 40 microcomputers--NCR PC fours, as well as PC sixes, contained in two laboratories.

Wright State's continued strong student enrollment in the program (more than 1,300 at present) was also considered by SAI.

Other important concerns were the quality and effectiveness of the teachers involved in the program, and the strength of the promotional literature.

On-campus crimes becoming more violent

TOWNSON, MD.(CPS)--Three years ago, Dorothy Siegel, Towson State University's vice president of student services, thought there was something different--perhaps more violent--about the campus crime people were talking about.

After a vain search for statistics about the issue, Siegel eventually organized the first National Conference on Campus Violence, which she hosted at Towson two weeks ago.

At the conference, about 150 police officers, students services and residence hall personnel, and judicial officers from nearly 50 colleges submitted reports that, while not fully tabulated yet, indicate the campus crime rate nationwide has been falling.

But the number of violent crimes is rising.

"What we found was only about one-third of campuses reported an increase of crime, but the violent nature of those crimes is increasing," Siegel said. "Crimes are becoming more dangerous."

The preliminary figures also indicate alcohol consumption is involved in an increasing number of campus assaults.

More than 50% of the total 350 campuses Siegel has polled

Country music may be “cornball”, but it’s adaptable

By Tim Riley

For singers, country music is the toughest style to master. The melodies are no problem, but to invest yourself in unspeakable cornball fantasies about the most ordinary, everyday topics is extraordinarily difficult. In the best country music, there's a tension between the singers' sincerity and the distance they keep from the schmaltz they wear on their sleeves. They don't really expect us to swallow all their hard-luck tales, even though we expect them to sound credible.

Unlike the blues, where singers invest so much of themselves that the listening experience resembles a shared confessional, country singers use the distance from the material to charm the audience.

When Bob Dylan, the master of innuendo, sings a line like "you can have your cake and eat it too" in "Lay Lady Lay," he's winking at us. The words are transparent. We can hear right through them, but his delivery forces us to appreciate the feeling behind the cliché.

A quick list of British approaches to the style helps explain just how important country is to rock and roll.

The Beatles, for instance, sported a rural cut on nearly every album. Titles like "Act Naturally" and "What Goes On" were given to Ringo for comic relief. The Rolling Stones put as much into "Country Honk" as they did into Robert Johnson's "Love in Vain."

On his country album, Almost Blue, Elvis Costello curbs his typically snarling attacks to emphasize the melodrama of lines like "I couldn't stop my tears from falling on the courtroom floor." Plaintiff's sentiments like that don't need any dressing up. Why flaunt exaggeration?

The current country re-finding able talent in all of settings, from the lum-harmony of the Judds to rambling guitar style of Earle. For me, two recent country records by T-Bone
Burnett and Dwight Yoakam epitomize the less-is-more humility that masters like Williams personified.

The State Department is pleased by recent actions directed at fighting terrorism. It points to a number of moves by western governments, including West Germany's attempt to extradite Mohammed Hamadei to the United States to face air piracy and murder charges. The State Department said it expects the pro-

The United States has lifted its advisory against traveling to the Soviet Ukraine where the Chernobyl nuclear plant was damaged last year. A three-member team that traveled to Kiev last October wrote a report concluding that radiation levels in the Kiev area are now near normal.

The Senate turned thumbs down yesterday on a proposed pay hike for Congress and thousands of federal workers. Still, there's little indication the House will follow the Senate's lead. Unless it does, the raises begin automatically Feb. 3. Opponents say they'll try to kill the raises another way by adding an amendment to a $50 million bill to help the homeless. ## Raiders iced by Penguins, 99-90

By DAVE CLARK

Sports Editor

It was a case of too much, too little, too late for the Wright State men's basketball Wednesday night at Youngstown State.

As it proved in this 99-90 Raider loss to the Penguins of Youngstown State, the Raiders fell behind by as many as 25 points (too much), but rallied to cut the lead to six points (too little). But when the Raiders had trimmed the bulging lead down to six, there were only 22 seconds left in the game (too late).

Despite double figure scoring from five Raiders, the Penguins rolled to their eighth victory of the season against 10 defeats.

The game began with Raider Corey Brown hitting a baseline jumper to give the Raiders a 2-0 lead with 1:43 evaporated from the game clock, but 17 seconds later, Tilman Bevely put the Penguins on the board with a slam dunk of a rebound. The Raiders would never again see the lead.

The Penguins went on to build a four point advantage with two consecutive buckets, but a Joe Jackson lay-up and a Penny Lyons jumpshot negated those scores. With 15:52 remaining until intermission, the game was tied at six all.

The Penguins, though, scored the game's next eight points, and the Raiders were doomed to pay comeback ball for the rest of the game.

The Penguin lead hovered between six and 10 points for the next seven minutes, but the Raiders refused to be blown out of the contest.

With 6:17 left, James Jones hit in on two free throws to cut the Raiders to within four points, 28-24, but Penguin John Robinson answered back with a three-pointer from the top of the key to pump the lead back to seven.

Lyons pulled the Raiders back to within four points when he canned a three-pointer of his own, and when he matched that long range bomb with another one just 90 seconds later, the Raiders were within three points with 3:29 left before the half.

Matt Horstman closed the gap down to a single point with a jumper from the lane, but the remaining three minutes of the opening stanza belonged to the Penguins.

In those three minutes, the Raiders were outscored by an 11-5 margin, and the Penguins waddled to the locker room with a 44-37 halftime lead.

The second half started with Penguins gunning their lead up to 20 points before the closing period was even five minutes old, and that lead grew to an 81-56 bulge with 8:30 to go.

Just as it seemed that the final nail had been driven into the Raider coffin, WSU broke loose.

Five minutes after the Penguins enjoyed that gaping advantage, the Raiders had pruned the lead down to 12 points, 88-76.

A Jones free throw and another Lyons basket-seeking, three point missile brought the lead down to eight points with just 2:15 to play.

The Penguins responded by inflating back to 12 points, and the Raiders could get no closer than six points away before settling the nine point setback.

Leading the way for the 12-6 Raiders was Jones with a career high 19 points and Lyons with 19, as well. Brown hit for 13 points, while Jackson had 12 and Dave Dinn 10 to round out the double figure scorers.

Other scorers were Horstman with five, and Chris Wampler, Rodney Webb, and Henry Grace with four apiece.

The Raiders shot 53% for the game, while the Penguins hit on 51% of their tries.

Next for the struggling WSU squad is a trip to Frankfort, Ky to take on the Thorobreds of Kentucky State on Saturday.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

We DO have a life!

To the Editrix:

First off, in response to the cartoon in the recent Guardian, yes, we do have a life. It is this knowledge of our short voyage as sentient beings in this universe which makes us relish life all the more. That we wish to see life continue on this planet is not subservience to any ideology.

At cause, unflinching adherence to any ideology, be it religious, political or economic, is idolatry by another name. Mr. Lawrence's recent letter mentioned many examples of our present leader's devotion to this. The principles of advertising statesmanship first publicly formulated by Goebels in the 30s are alive today in Reagan's business school puppet masters.

Yet at the core of the anti-war mindset is one simple fact: neither war nor appeasement work. Human life, over the course of some 50,000 years has seen many tyrants come and go. But the present Sandinistas, like Castro in Cuba and the short-lived Allende government in Chile, have done more since the overthrow of Somoza to bring better health, education and equally distributed wealth to Central America than any supposed benevolent dictatorship since the Spanish macho horde decimated the indigenous peoples there over 400 years ago.

How dare the United States government interfere with Central America's politics while in this country one man's dream of social equality is still just that.

Stop the arch-Conservative business-driven War Machine!

WSU bureaucracy, or Thank God for carbon paper

By DAVE CLARK

Sports Editor

The proverbial you know what has hit the old air circulator.

I am finally at my wit's end with a majority of the policies here at Wright State.

Not all of them, just the ones that are supposed to make life easier, in triplicate.

From the financial aid office to the payroll office, this university excretes bureaucracy at its finest.

Speaking of the financial aid office, I am still waiting on my loan forms that were supposed to take about six weeks to prepare. Not saying that their behind a bit in the hallowed halls in Student Services, but does triplicate also cover return time.

Payroll slightly raised my dander last week, as well, but I haven't talked to them yet, so I'll leave them alone.

Hey, while I'm at it, let's talk parking services.

Everyday I hear someone complaining about a car being parked in their B space, and I can understand their gripe. But some of our parking regulations are, well, bent, like getting a ticket for parking a red car in a blue car slot.

Maybe, I'm knit-picking, but I think the parking people would have an easier time if there weren't at least three cars for every one parking space.

And another thing, how 'bout that new Rat? Seen it yet? No, well, join the crowd.

The hold ups have been this and that, hey, I DON'T CARE, I get grouchy without my greasy pizza and lukewarm beer.

Well, I've ranted and raved long enough, it's time to face up to reality.

But with all these forms to fill out in triplicate, I have only one thing to say THANK GOD FOR CARBON PAPER!!

Schedule produces no mercy for Lady Raiders

A pair of tough opponents from the Great Lakes Region awaits the Wright State women's basketball team, as the Raiders hope to improve their 17-2 record.

Southern Illinois at Edwardsville will host the Raiders on Jan. 31 before Wright State returns home to tangle with St. Joseph's on Wednesday, Feb. 4.

Southern Illinois at Edwardsville will be seeking a measure of revenge when they host the Raiders. The Cougars fell to Wright State, 81-75, in the championship of the Wright

State Invitational on Dec. 20.

The Cougars have been plagued with inconsistency and lack of depth, but have still managed a fine 11-8 record heading into a game with Southern Indiana on Jan. 27. Renae Harris, a 5-foot-9 senior forward, leads four starters in double figures with a 14.5 points per game scoring average.

When St. Joseph's invades the Wright State PE Building, the game could have a tremendous impact on the outcome of the race in the Great Lakes region. In the most recent Great Lakes regional poll, Wright State finds itself in first place, while the Pumas of St. Joseph's are entrenched in third place with a 10-2 ledger.

St. Joseph's pinned a 71-70 overtime loss on the Raiders one year ago, but return only one starter from that 20-8 squad. Sophomore center Tracy Payne (16.8 ppg) and senior guard Judy Stewart (15.3 ppg) are the only Pumas in double digits.

Wright State, which is in the midst of a 13-game winning streak, continues to rely on balanced scoring from all five starters. Janet Emerson (18.6 ppg) and Tammy Stover (15.3 ppg) are at the top of the Raider scoring list.

Stover tallied 16 points, four assists, and four steals in a 80-74 victory over Indianapolis last week. She followed that effort with a 19-point, two-steal performance in an 86-58 win over Georgetown. Stover earned Athlete of the Week honors for her efforts.

Without financial aid, higher education is out of reach

By Lisa Jean Silva

(CPS)- Most Americans believe that they could not afford to attend college without some kind of financial aid, a major education group says.

As Congress debated cutting federal student aid programs last week, the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) released the results of a nationwide poll showing almost seven out of every 10 Americans think college would be "out of reach" if they couldn't get aid.

CASE has sponsored the poll for several years, and yet while about the same percentage of Americans (68 percent) said they needed aid to go to college in 1983, an increasing percentage this year think college tuitions are rising so fast that higher education is getting "out of reach" for most people.

Most respondents, reports Dr. Walt Lindenmann of Opinion Research Corp., which conducts the survey for CASE, also favored more federal aid for students from low-income and middle-income families.

Students who didn't even know about the survey seemed to agree with its conclusions.

Sandy Esche, a freshman at South Dakota State, says she wouldn't be in school without her College Work Study job, and monies from a National Direct Student Loan, a scholarship and a Pell Grant.

"Put it this way," she says, "my dad's a farmer, one of the majority that isn't making it."

Louisiana State junior Vivianne Berkley explains, "I was in the Army, and they pay me every month that I'm in school. But I still need the Pell Grant and Guaranteed Student Loan I get."

"It's really hard even for residents to make it without grants," Berkley adds.

Hawaii Loa College junior Gail Livoti, who describes herself as from a "middle income" family, believes that without aid "there'd be so many people out of school, and I'd probably one of them."

CASE and others, of course, hope the survey results will help persuade Congress not to pass the aid cuts President Reagan requested in early January.

"Any time you have a reputable survey--and this group is reputable--that demonstrates greater public support for programs, it adds strength to those programs in Congress," says David Evans of the Senate education subcommittee.

In his proposal for the 1987-1988 federal budget--which extends from Oct. 1, 1987 through Sept. 1988--Reagan asked Congress to cut federal higher education spending to $4.8 billion, down from $8.7 billion in fiscal 1987.

The President wants Congress to eliminate the College Work Study, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, National Direct Student Loan and State Student Incentive Grant programs, while cutting funding for the Guaranteed Student Loan and Pell Grant programs.

"It's in the hands of Congress," notes Sherri Hancock, aid director at Central

State University in Oklahoma.

The President said aid cuts would help reduce the federal budget deficit. "As a taxpayer," Hancock says, "I'd like to see the deficit reduced, but being an advocate for students, I think it's unfortunate that the budget changes will affect largely the middle-income family."

Jay Larson, South Dakota State's aid director, has no such mixed feelings about the cuts.

"It is quite imperative that current financial aid programs be maintained," he asserts.

When asked what she thought of the cuts, student Esche speculated they "would drastically reduce the number of students able to attend college. The majority of SDSU students receive some kind of aid."

The cuts, Esche says, "would push more students out of school and into the job market. The economic ramifications of that would be pretty obvious."

Evans says the CASE survey may in fact "fend-off" some of the cuts, and may even get Congress to allocate more money to student financial programs "even though it's a year for financial restraint."

simply because we provide the best service for the best price," said David Buzzard, associate dean of the college. He explained a competitive cost, a convenient downtown location and marketing a product which is in public demand, were key elements involved in the selection process. He confessed there was a certain bias toward the advertising involved, but added "It really is important in this kind of work."

Buzzard stated people who usually choose a continuing education program are established in the work force and are looking for a competitive edge to help them get ahead, need to refresh themselves on past knowledge, or wish to become computer literate.

The courses with programs are of a non-credit nature and are designed to promote personal and professional improvement.

Buzzard said he wished to see the microcomputer program become more potent with an increase in quality and intensity within the courses.

According to Buzzard, this will mean for the student a greater level of proficiency and will help the student apply what has been learned in the real world work setting.

That country music easily accommodates both extremes speaks well for its adaptability.

It's material that wouldn't do well in other styles of music. Picture Barbra Streisand singing some of this stuff, and

Raiders look to regain winning momentum this week

Wondering whether the men's basketball team will continue its Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde act, head coach Ralph Underhill will take his Raiders into a five-game stretch that will include four games away from the friendly confines of the PE Building.

After playing at Youngstown State on Wednesday, Wright State will travel to Kentucky State on Saturday, Jan. 31, before returning home for a Feb. 2 game with IUPUI. The team will then meet Central State at the UD Arena on Wednesday, Feb. 4, before traveling to Northern Kentucky on Saturday.

"As they all are, this is an important stretch for us," Underhill said. "We've got ourselves to a point where we need to get another (winning) streak going heading into February."

The team has played with two different personalities since the holiday break. In the first four games of the new year, the Raider offense was on track, hitting 53.6% of its shots (119 of 222) from the field and out-rebounding its opponents by more than four rebounds per game. In the last three games, the Raiders have hit just 42.9% of their shots (75 of 175) and were out-rebounded by just under eight per game. The Raiders won the first five games of the new year, but struggled last week, winning just one of four games.

The downslide started when Edinboro broke a five-game winning streak with a 79-77 victory on Monday. Two nights later, the Raiders survived a 19-point first-half performance to defeat Indianapolis, 52-47. On Saturday, Findlay ended the Raider regular season home winning streak at 49 with a 72-69 win in front of a sold out crowd, and Youngstown State also downed the Raiders, 99-90.

Although the Raiders were averaging 85 points per game until the last three games, they have just 66 points in those three contests. Part of the scoring problem can be traced to the four front court players who have hit just 39.4% of their shots (28 of 71) during the three-game stretch. Junior Joe Jackson, who was the team scoring leader, has scored just six points in the last two games combined and has lost the team scoring lead.

"We've had a couple guys in slumps so we might be quicker to shift things around," Underhill said. "We will be trying to find the guy with the hot hand and stick with him. We have several guys on the bench with playing experience, so we can shift around without disrupting the team."

Senior Lenny Lyons has taken over team scoring honors at 15.6 points per game after tallying 58 points in the three games last week, including a 24-point performance in the loss to Findlay. He also holds the team lead in assists with 120, and average of 7.0 per game.

The Kentucky State game will match the Raiders against a team which has lost 14 of its last 15 games, including the last eight. The Thorobreds host Taylor tonight before the Wright State encounter. First year head coach Paul Peck has pared a preseason 21-man roster down to 12 players, including two who are averaging in double figures. Sophomore Charleston Bowles is averaging 10.9 points, while Greg Cheatham, the only senior on the team, averages 10.8 points.

IUPUI has put together a four-game winning streak, its longest of the season, heading into a road game at Indiana-Southeast (last Tuesday) and a home game with Tri-State (Saturday). Senior Aldray Gibson supports a 27.8 point per game average and is ranked tenth in the NAIA in scoring.

Central State seems to be rebounding from a 1-7 start by winning six of its last ten games. The Marauders host Oberlin (Saturday) and California (Monday) before the Wright State game. The squad is hitting just 40.1% of its shots from the field, but has been hitting 45.2% of its shots from three-point range. The top scorer for second-year head coach Raymond Burke is sophomore Reggie Robinson, averaging 14.6 points.

The last home game with Findlay drew 2,817 fans into the PE Building, the most this season. The average attendance through 12 home games is 2,483.

RAIDER NOTES:

The Monday night game against IUPUI will be sponsored by the office of Alumni Affairs as All-America Night. Eighteen former Raider All-Americans who have graduated recently will be honored in a special ceremony.

After facing a fierce schedule in January, the Raiders should have a much easier time of it in February. Only two of the nine February opponents support a winning record. IUPUI is 13-7 and Northern Kentucky is at 10-8, while the remaining teams are Central State (7-11), Kentucky State (3-14), Ashland (8-9), Wilmington (5-15), Spring Arbor (9-10), IP-Fort Wayne (8-10) and Quincy (9-12).

Central State is serving as the host institution for the Wednesday game at the U.D. Arena. Tickets are available in the Wright State ticket office for $3.50 for adults and $2 for students.

Last season's 91-68 victory by the Raiders over Kentucky State was the first time the two teams have met since the 1981-82 campaign when Wright State swept a two-game season series. Wright State leads the all-time series, 3-2, after dropping the first two meetings in 1976-77 and 1977-78. Underhill is 3-0 against Kentucky State, while the Raiders have a 1-1 record in games played in Frankfort. The two teams will tangle again on Feb. 11 in Dayton.

Monday's game will mark the eleventh consecutive year that the Raiders and IUPUI have met on the hardwood. Wright State improved its advantage to 8-2 with last season's 97-73 victory in Dayton. The Metros broke a string of seven straight Raider victories with a 77-74 upset in Indianapolis in 1984-85. Underhill is 7-1 against the Metros, while Lovell is 1-3 against Wright State.

Grote and Kordig inducted into WSU Hall of Fame

A pair of record-setting athletes, Bob Grote and Jim Kordik, were selected as the 1987 inductees into the Wright State University Athletic Hall of Fame. They will be honored at a reception and dinner on Friday, Feb. 27 and will be inducted into the hall at halftime of the men's basketball game against Quincy on Saturday, Feb. 28.

Grote, who lettered four years on both the baseball and basketball teams, was a two-team Associated Press honorable mention All-American selection as a basketball player. The 6-foot-4 guard, who played from 1972-1976, became the fourth player to pass the

GROTE

1,000-point plateau and now ranks fourth on the all-time scoring list with 1,406 points. He led the team in scoring for three straight seasons and was twice selected as the team MVP.

Grote also pitched four years for the Raider baseball team, earning a three-year professional baseball stint in the Atlanta Braves organization. An all-district player as a senior, the right-handed pitcher still holds school records for most strikeouts in a season (89) and in a career (222) and best career earned run average (2.28). He won 20 games during his four-year career, second best on the all-time list.

Grote helped Raider athletics

break new ground to gain national prominence on the Division II level. His pitching helped Wright State to its first baseball regional tournament berth in 1975 and 1976. On the basketball court, he helped the Raiders to their first basketball regional tournament appearance in 1976.

Kordig also notched several "firsts" during his four year wrestling career from 1975 to 1979. The former 118-pounder became the first wrestler to win 100 career matches. He also was the first to record more than 30 victories in a season (34 in 1978-79) and was the first four time national qualifier.
